

Kamran Naim

Head of Open Science and Advisor
on Digital Strategy
European Organization for Nuclear Research (CERN)

Dr. Kamran Naim is Head of Open Science and Advisor on Digital Strategy (Office of the CIO) at the European Organization for Nuclear Research (CERN). His work focuses on advancing open science policy, sustainable research infrastructures, and new models for scholarly communication, with a particular emphasis on ensuring that the benefits of open science are shared globally and equitably.

At CERN, he leads the development of the Organization's Open Science strategy and contributes to wider initiatives in digital strategy, research data and scientific information. He has played a leading role in international open science initiatives, including SCOAP³ and Open Research Europe.

Kamran also serves as Chair of the Board of eLife and the Biochemical Society. He holds a PhD from Stanford University.