

Hunting axions with the James Webb Space Telescope

Thursday 10 July 2025 16:40 (20 minutes)

Axions with a mass around 1 eV can decay into near-infrared photons. Using blank-sky observations from the James Webb Space Telescope, I search for a narrow emission line due to decaying dark matter and derive leading constraints on the axion-photon coupling in the eV-scale mass range.

Author: PINETTI, Elena (Flatiron Institute/Simons Foundation)

Presenter: PINETTI, Elena (Flatiron Institute/Simons Foundation)

Session Classification: Parallel 3